STATE BUDGET FOR TWO YEARS IS $320,782,406

Governor Tells Assembly That No New Taxes Will Be Levied

FINANCIERS HAVE TASK

Floor Leader Says Solons To Start Appropriation Work At Once

COLUMBUS, March 28—Members of the house finance committee went to work today on a budget bill that will follow the lines of Governor Bricker's recommendations for governmental expenditures of $302,032,406 during the next two years.

That amount does not include a recommendation that $18,500,000 be appropriated for relief purposes, or $9,250,000 for each year. Another $250,000 estimated for the payment of sundry claims does not appear.

With those totals taken into consideration, the actual state expenditures for 1939 and 1940 would amount to $320,782,406.

Republican Floor Leader J. Harry McGregor said that the house finance committee would stop work on all other bills and direct all its efforts toward drafting a biennial appropriation measure based "entirely on the recommendations of the governor."

Institutions Face Cut

The governor proposes to slice salaries $52,285, from expenditures in the last biennium of $66,784,805 to $66,732,520. The big cut is shown in Bricker's recommendation for maintenance of all state institutions exclusive of aid for the aged and the school foundation.

On this item he proposes to lop off $19,002,079 from $68,681,853 to $49,679,774.

Aid for the aged appropriations would be upped approximately $7,000,000 with half to be paid by the federal government, and appropriations for schools about $5,000,000.

Public employes retirement system allowances, which cost the government $96,000 in the last biennium will run $2,098,000 in the next two years, a difference of more than $2,000,000. There were no expenditures for this item in 1937.

It is proposed that $575,727 more be spent for additions and betterments to state buildings than was expended during the last two years.

"This will provide a building program for the welfare department, when added to appropriations of the last general assembly," Bricker declared in his budget message to the legislature last night, "of nearly a million and three-quarters dollars."

Bricker will order horizontal salary reductions, or maintenance reductions for all departments and institutions to enable the state to live within its income, he said, in the event of failure of revenue to come up to estimate.

Must Meet Obligations

"Ohio must and shall meet her obligations and operate within her income without new or increased taxes," the governor declared.

Harvard Student Starts On Beetles, Then Lists Goldfish In Diet

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 28—Irving Clark of Hunt's Point, Washington state, "human seal" of Harvard university, who downed 24 live goldfish to break the intercollegiate record, today had lined up a really tasty menu.

The appetizer will be an angle worm, with a bug for a chaser. Seventy-five live fish will follow, topped by a beetle for dessert.

Clark, whose taste in food is unrestricted by any fastidious prejudice against insects, has established a scale of box office prices. At five cents admission Clark will swallow a bug. For a 10 cent "house" he will down an angle worm. Beetles come high, with 25 cents per spectator listed as the standard price. There is no limit on his goldfish consumption, although he considers 75 an ample snack.

To aspiring goldfish eaters Clark issued the following advice:

"Begin on beetles. There's nothing like swallowing beetles to prepare you for a live goldfish eating title."

President Voices Approval For Construction Of Gigantic Ships

WASHINGTON, March 28—Determined to make the Western Hemisphere invulnerable from attack either from the Atlantic or the Pacific, or from both oceans simultaneously, President Roosevelt has given the U. S. navy the word to go ahead with construction of the largest battleships the world has ever known, it was learned today.

The naval high command is prepared to lay down keels on two 45,000 ton floating fortresses by next Summer, it became known as the result of secret testimony by Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, before a house naval appropriations subcommittee yesterday.

President Roosevelt, it was learned from sources close to the White House, has given full approval to construction of the huge new capital ships.

The committee is considering administration-proposed legislation to extend the operations of the $2,000,000,000 gold stabilization fund and the President's monetary powers for two more years.

The defeated amendment, offered by Rep. Reed (R) Illinois, would have stricken the extension of the Monetary powers from the bill. Its immediate effect would have been to prevent Mr. Roosevelt from further devaluating the dollar. The gold content of which is now fixed at 59 cents.

UNION REFUSES ADMISSION TO ITS GATHERING

CLEVELAND, March 28 — Visitors and newspapermen were barred today from the convention of the C. I. O. wing of the United Automobile Workers of America during the address of Philip Murray, C. I. O. vice-president.

The delegates themselves voted the exclusion of the press, visitors, and representatives from unions other than the U. A. W.-C. I. O.

It was believed the action of the convention in going into closed "executive session" was to permit Murray to make an effort before the entire group to spike factional difficulties that have cropped up.

Pilsudski's Widow Urges Women To Be Ready For Struggle

WARSAW, March 28 — Thousands of Polish troops were massed in the Polish corridor today amid growing Warsaw-Berlin tension.

Patriotic demonstrations took place throughout the nation—all directed against the spectre of "German aggression."

Newspapers were filled with resolutions as virtually every sector of the population affirmed its determination to fight should Poland prove the next object of Nazi territorial ambition.

Mme Pilsudski, widow of the famous Polish military hero, urged women to be ready to join their menfolk in the trenches if need be.

Meanwhile the government promulgated vigorous measures to conserve essential supplies, and placed the economic life of the nation on a war footing.

German Move Expected

The intense activity apparently was the result of the German press campaign, accusing Poles in the corridor of beating up German women and children. On all sides fears were expressed that this might presage a German move against Poland — and everywhere there was evident a determination to resist the blow if it should be struck.

BERLIN, March 28—Indications of a stiffening German attitude toward Poland on the Danzig issue abounded today as the Reich's thunderous propaganda machine was turned on Warsaw.

Belief immediately arose that Chancellor Hitler may be preparing for a sudden showdown on the free city of Danzig and the Polish corridor.

In some well-informed quarters, however, the opinion was expressed that the current Polish-German "fireworks" constituted nothing more than a diplomatic maneuver.

SLOVAK BORDER STRIFE BECOMES INTENSE AGAIN

BUDAPEST, March 28 — Slovakian artillery bombarded the Hungarian border town of Bunkos today in a new outbreak of fighting over the Slovak-Hungarian border dispute, it was reported in Budapest today.

Two houses were destroyed and one Hungarian soldier was killed, it was charged. A Hungarian artillery battery was silenced, the advices stated.

Other reports stated that Slovak forces yesterday bombarded the town of Kiskolon, killing one soldier and seriously wounding another.

The renewed fighting broke out after a week-end announcement of a truce pending negotiation of the frontier controversy.

Despite the reported Slovak attacks, the Hungarian press pleaded for a reconciliation with Slovaks.

Meanwhile, efforts to work out a peaceful settlement of the border dispute between the two countries continued.

The Slovakian delegation, which came to Budapest yesterday to fix the frontier between Slovakia and Ruthenia returned today to Bratislava with the Budapest government's proposals.

After discussions with the Slovak cabinet, the delegation is expected to return to Budapest within a few days.

Ice Gorge in Missouri River Forces Evacuation

BISMARCK, N. D., March 28—Between 200 and 300 families abandoned their homes along the Missouri river south of Bismarck today when an ice gorge ten miles long and in places eight miles wide choked the river and brought fears of a serious flood.

The threatened area is about 20 miles south of Bismarck, but the capital city of North Dakota, situated on a high bluff, was not in danger.

O. W. Roberts, weather bureau official, said the ice gorge had caused the river to back up, raising it from a normal depth of about 17½ feet to flood stage of 21.8 feet. Roberts said unless the gorge was broken up the river might rise another two or three feet, necessitating removal of about 300 more families.

The evacuated homes lie on both shores of the river, between Fort Rice and Huff in the south central part of the state.

According to Roberts, the gorge was formed last week, when this area for three days had unseasonal 80-degree temperatures.

Refugees from the threatened area were cared for in Bismarck by the Red Cross. They were removed from their homes by W.P.A. emergency flood relief workers under the guidance of the Red Cross.

Mike Fischer, W.P.A. worker living in a box car in Bismarck, set out alone in a boat and rescued sixteen marooned persons within a radius of three miles.

MERCURY FALLS AS HEAVY RAIN COMES TO END

Sunshine returned to Pickaway county Tuesday after two days of chilly rain that amounted to a total of 2.6 inches.

Dr. H. R. Clarke, Circleville's weather recorder, said the rain in the 24 hours prior to 8 a. m. Tuesday was 1.8 inches. Rain in the 24 hours before 8 a. m. Monday was .8 of an inch. The door of the box containing the government instruments was swelled by the rain to the extent it had to be pried open.

Streams throughout the county were swollen by the deluge, but no serious high water was reported. Saltcreek came to the edge of Route 56 near Laurelville, Monday night, but did not cross the highway. The Scioto river was up some but was still a considerable distance from bank full, observers said.

The highest temperature Monday was 41 degrees. During the night the lowest was 31.

The rain met the approval of farmers, who say the season has been unusually dry. Cloudy weather is forecast for Wednesday.

COLUMBUS MEN ASSESSED FOR DRIVING INFRACTIONS

Two Columbus men were fined Monday by Mayor W. B. Cady for violations of the driver's license law.

Earl Bondurant, 44, of 570 Henry street, was fined $15 and costs for permitting a driver without a license to operate his car. John Monroe, 26, of 638 Henry street, was fined a similar amount for failure to have a driver's license. Bondurant paid his account. Monroe is in the county jail. The arrests were made by a state patrolman.

The drive being conducted by the police department to check traffic violations in the city has shown results during the last few days, Mayor Cady pointed out Tuesday. No arrests have been necessary.

MAN WHO DROVE FAMILY IN RAIN FACES CHARGES

CLEVELAND, March 28—The possibility of placing further charges against a 32-year-old steelworker accused of driving his wife and four small children into the rain was considered today by Gerald Pilliod, chief police prosecutor.

As a result of the man's alleged action, two of the children, 13-month-old twin girls, were reported in serious condition from pneumonia.

The father, Andrew Kollar, was to appear in court today for sentence on a charge of intoxication. Pilliod said he might also be charged with neglect of minor children by failing to provide them with a shelter.

The man's actions were described by Pilliod as "cruel and inhuman."

Mrs. Kollar told police her husband drove her and the children out of the house Saturday night after he had come home drunk. The family had been suffering from influenza. They were in the rain for three hours before neighbors noticed their plight and gave them shelter, she said.

The twins, Mildred and Marjie, were reported in "fair" condition today at Charity hospital.

DRUNK PLEASED WITH LENIENCY OFFERS DIME TO BUY JUDGE DRINK

IRONTON, March 28—Seventy-seven-year-old Enos Dunn was a dime richer today because a police judge refused an offer to "buy yourself a drink."

Charged with intoxication, Dunn was hailed before Judge George Hugger.

"I'm Irish, I'm 77, and I like to take a drink when I want it," Dunn told the judge.

Sympathetic, Hugger advised Dunn that he would be given another chance. Grateful, Dunn reached in his pocket, extracted a dime and flipped the coin to the judge's desk.

"Here, buy yourself a drink," Dunn instructed the astonished judge. The dime was returned.

SENATE VOTES N.L.R.B. STUDY

A. F. Of L. Victor Over C. I. O. In Move That May Mean Revision Of Law

WASHINGTON, March 28 — Marking a serious setback for the C.I.O. and a victory for the A.F. of L., the labor committee of the U. S. senate voted unanimously today to hold open hearings on proposed amendments to the National Labor Relations act.

The hearings will start April 11.

It was not known what effect the committee's action would have on President Roosevelt's labor peace conferences between the A.F. of L. and the C.I.O.

C.I.O. leaders had waged a nationwide campaign against the openings of hearings, fearing that a 'runaway congress" might completely revamp the act once hearings are held.

Just as bitterly, the A.F. of L. had insisted on hearings on amendments which it is sponsoring. The federation charged that the present labor board was "pro-C.I.O." and working with the C.I.O. for "destruction" of the A.F. of L.

GARNER BACKED FOR PRESIDENT BY HIS TEXANS

AUSTIN, Tex., March 28—For his statesmanship, his administrative capacity and his ability Vive President John Nance Garner should be supported for the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination both houses of the Texas legislature urged today.

"By repeated tests of legislative and administrative capacity and ability, John Nance Garner has fully and convincingly demonstrated his statesmanship and grasp of national affairs, and his ability has been recognized in every one of the other 47 states as well as in his own state."

TWO-YEAR SIEGE ENDS AS FRANCO TAKES CAPITAL

Others Remain To Pledge Allegiance To New Rulers

MADRID, March 28 — Presaging early termination of the Spanish Civil war, Madrid surrendered today to the victorious troops of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The capital capitulated shortly after 5 a. m. (Circleville time) when the general headquarters of the crumbled Madrid defense council announced that the central army, acting under orders, had bowed before the superior might of Franco's legions.

With the horrors of 32 months of warfare at an end, Madrid took on a changed aspect, as if some all-powerful practitioner had suddenly hypnotized the entire city.

White flags of surrender ran up in every section — and within a few hours Nationalist flags were flying from every flagstaff.

Thousands of people — many of whom had grown accustomed to the Communist clenched fist — began using the Fascist salute.

Spokesmen for Franco's high command announced that formal occupation of the capital would begin at noon. The victorious troops will converge on the Puerta Del Sol, Madrid's principal square, from the north and south.

As if by magic, thousands of Republican flags suddenly disappeared from the streets. By noon not one could be found.

Many thousands of Madrilenos, panic-stricken, jammed the exits of the city as they headed for the Mediterranean coast in hopes of finding a haven there.

But thousands on thousands of others poured into the streets from their houses, demonstrating for Franco — the man whose warplanes and guns had kept them in fear of their lives for more than two years.

Shortly after noon, a large Fascist demonstration occurred in Cibiles Square, where groups of

According to Roberts, the gorge was formed last week, when this area for three days had unseasonal 80-degree temperatures.

Refugees from the threatened area were cared for in Bismarck by the Red Cross. They were removed from their homes by W.P.A. emergency flood relief workers under the guidance of the Red Cross.

Mike Fischer, W.P.A. worker living in a box car in Bismarck, set out alone in a boat and rescued sixteen marooned persons within a radius of three miles.

MERCURY FALLS AS HEAVY RAIN COMES TO END

Sunshine returned to Pickaway county Tuesday after two days of chilly rain that amounted to a total of 2.6 inches.

Dr. H. R. Clarke, Circleville's weather recorder, said the rain in the 24 hours prior to 8 a. m. Tuesday was 1.8 inches. Rain in the 24 hours before 8 a. m. Monday was .8 of an inch. The door of the box containing the government instruments was swelled by the rain to the extent it had to be pried open.

Streams throughout the county were swollen by the deluge, but no serious high water was reported. Saltcreek came to the edge of Route 56 near Laurelville, Monday night, but did not cross the highway. The Scioto river was up some but was still a considerable distance from bank full, observers said.

The highest temperature Monday was 41 degrees. During the night the lowest was 31.

The rain met the approval of farmers, who say the season has been unusually dry. Cloudy weather is forecast for Wednesday.

COLUMBUS MEN ASSESSED FOR DRIVING INFRACTIONS

Two Columbus men were fined Monday by Mayor W. B. Cady for violations of the driver's license law.

Earl Bondurant, 44, of 570 Henry street, was fined $15 and costs for permitting a driver without a license to operate his car. John Monroe, 26, of 638 Henry street, was fined a similar amount for failure to have a driver's license. Bondurant paid his account. Monroe is in the county jail. The arrests were made by a state patrolman.

The drive being conducted by the police department to check traffic violations in the city has shown results during the last few days, Mayor Cady pointed out Tuesday. No arrests have been necessary.

MAN WHO DROVE FAMILY IN RAIN FACES CHARGES

CLEVELAND, March 28—The possibility of placing further charges against a 32-year-old steelworker accused of driving his wife and four small children into the rain was considered today by Gerald Pilliod, chief police prosecutor.

As a result of the man's alleged action, two of the children, 13-month-old twin girls, were reported in serious condition from pneumonia.

The father, Andrew Kollar, was to appear in court today for sentence on a charge of intoxication. Pilliod said he might also be charged with neglect of minor children by failing to provide them with a shelter.

The man's actions were described by Pilliod as "cruel and inhuman."

Mrs. Kollar told police her husband drove her and the children out of the house Saturday night after he had come home drunk. The family had been suffering from influenza. They were in the rain for three hours before neighbors noticed their plight and gave them shelter, she said.

The twins, Mildred and Marjie, were reported in "fair" condition today at Charity hospital.

DRUNK PLEASED WITH LENIENCY OFFERS DIME TO BUY JUDGE DRINK

IRONTON, March 28—Seventy-seven-year-old Enos Dunn was a dime richer today because a police judge refused an offer to "buy yourself a drink."

Charged with intoxication, Dunn was hailed before Judge George Hugger.

"I'm Irish, I'm 77, and I like to take a drink when I want it," Dunn told the judge.

Sympathetic, Hugger advised Dunn that he would be given another chance. Grateful, Dunn reached in his pocket, extracted a dime and flipped the coin to the judge's desk.

"Here, buy yourself a drink," Dunn instructed the astonished judge. The dime was returned.

SENATE VOTES N.L.R.B. STUDY

A. F. Of L. Victor Over C. I. O. In Move That May Mean Revision Of Law

WASHINGTON, March 28 — Marking a serious setback for the C.I.O. and a victory for the A.F. of L., the labor committee of the U. S. senate voted unanimously today to hold open hearings on proposed amendments to the National Labor Relations act.

The hearings will start April 11.

It was not known what effect the committee's action would have on President Roosevelt's labor peace conferences between the A.F. of L. and the C.I.O.

C.I.O. leaders had waged a nationwide campaign against the openings of hearings, fearing that a 'runaway congress" might completely revamp the act once hearings are held.

Just as bitterly, the A.F. of L. had insisted on hearings on amendments which it is sponsoring. The federation charged that the present labor board was "pro-C.I.O." and working with the C.I.O. for "destruction" of the A.F. of L.

GARNER BACKED FOR PRESIDENT BY HIS TEXANS

AUSTIN, Tex., March 28—For his statesmanship, his administrative capacity and his ability Vive President John Nance Garner should be supported for the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination both houses of the Texas legislature urged today.

The legislature adopted the following resolution booming Garner's nomination next year:

"By repeated tests of legislative and administrative capacity and ability, John Nance Garner has fully and convincingly demonstrated his statesmanship and grasp of national affairs, and his ability has been recognized in every one of the other 47 states as well as in his own state."

SEWAGE DISPOSAL BILLS PAYABLE BEFORE APRIL 15

Miss Charlotte McEwing, E. Main street, is assisting Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, in preparing statements for a quarterly collection of sewage disposal plant charges to be sent to property owners April 1.

About 1,500 statements are being prepared. Assessments must be paid before April 15. A ten percent penalty will be charged after that date. The charge for a one family dwelling is $6 a year.

A special meeting of city council will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. for councilmen to consider the acceptance of work completed to date at the disposal plant. Final date for the plant completion is April 29.

TWO-YEAR SIEGE ENDS AS FRANCO TAKES CAPITAL

National Troops Greeted By Jovial Populace; Little Resistance Faced

THOUSANDS SEEK SAFETY

Others Remain To Pledge Allegiance To New Rulers

MADRID, March 28 — Presaging early termination of the Spanish Civil war, Madrid surrendered today to the victorious troops of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The capital capitulated shortly after 5 a. m. (Circleville time) when the general headquarters of the crumbled Madrid defense council announced that the central army, acting under orders, had bowed before the superior might of Franco's legions.

With the horrors of 32 months of warfare at an end, Madrid took on a changed aspect, as if some all-powerful practitioner had suddenly hypnotized the entire city.

White flags of surrender ran up in every section — and within a few hours Nationalist flags were flying from every flagstaff.

Thousands of people — many of whom had grown accustomed to the Communist clenched fist — began using the Fascist salute.

By International News Service

The surrender today of Madrid to General Francisco Franco's Spanish Nationalist troops ended the longest and most sanguinary siege of a great city in modern history.

The siege lasted two years four months and 22 days. It began with a heavy bombardment on November 6, 1936 after two weeks of preliminary air raids.

Republicans near Cuesta De Los Perdices.

Spokesmen for Franco's high command announced that formal occupation of the capital would begin at noon. The victorious troops will converge on the Puerta Del Sol, Madrid's principal square, from the north and south.

As if by magic, thousands of Republican flags suddenly disappeared from the streets. By noon not one could be found.

Many thousands of Madrilenos, panic-stricken, jammed the exits of the city as they headed for the Mediterranean coast in hopes of finding a haven there.

But thousands on thousands of others poured into the streets from their houses, demonstrating for Franco — the man whose warplanes and guns had kept them in fear of their lives for more than two years.

Shortly after noon, a large Fascist demonstration occurred in Cibiles Square, where groups of

BIG CITY BLOC ENDS FIGHT ON FARM MEASURE

Parity Payment Proposal Assured Following Decision

WASHINGTON, March 28—Big city delegations, which have been fighting a $250,000,000 appropriation for parity payments to farmers, today capitulated thus clearing the path for passage of the record-breaking $1,067,000,000 agriculture department supply bill.

The decision to yield came after five days of intense effort by the metropolitan members to force the powerful house farm bloc into an agreement to support the $150,000,000 W. P. A. request in exchange for urban backing for the unbudgeted parity payments.

Steadfast refusal of farm bloc leaders to bow to the open log-rolling tactics of the New York City, Chicago and Philadelphia delegations was credited with breaking the impasse. Farm bloc spokesmen predicted the supply bill would pass late today with the parity payment funds intact and without any "trade" on the question of relief.

House administration leaders, backing the parity payment proposal, received part credit for ending the deadlock which caused the house to spend four days of debate on a bill which it annually passes in two.

Chairman Taylor, of the house appropriations committee, deliberately delayed a committee vote on the W. P. A. appropriation scheduled for today, frankly asserting that he did not "wish to become party to the log-rolling" which began behind the scenes Wednesday and finally was forced out into the open two days later.

The appropriations committee is threatening to reduce the $150,000,000 relief request. The city delegations have been striving to force a bargain which would guarantee approval of the $150,000,000 without any reduction, in return for their support for the $250,000,000 in parity payments.

Rep. Sabath (D) of Illinois, who has been leading the battle of the metropolitan groups, said today he would vote for the parity payment appropriation.

TRUE OHIO COST SHOWN, HOUSE MEMBER DECLARES

COLUMBUS, March 28 — The people of Ohio know the cost of their state government for the first time in many years, Senator Fred L. Adams (R-Bowling Green) chairman of the senate finance committee, said today in commenting on Governor Bricker's budget message to the general assembly last night.

"The executive budget, which includes an inherited deficit from the Davey administration," Adams said, "shows an aggregate saving of eighteen million dollars over the last biennium.

"The platform of the Republican party pledged this administration to a a reduction in the cost of state government. In carrying out that pledge ample funds were provided for relief, old age pensions and the necessary functions of state government.

"Governor Bricker has the courage to inform the citizens of Ohio the true financial condition of the state."

Should Not Be Crisis

"Unless somebody's foot slips," one observer said, "German-Polish relations should not enter on a crisis at present."

Reports of large-scale Polish military preparations brought no direct comment other than denials, but the inspired German press and official statements assumed a tone markedly similar to that used against Prague before the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

Nazi press dispatches claimed that German women and children in the Polish corridor had been beaten for speaking their own language — and a semi-official pronouncement voiced the German government's "amazement" at this.

Twin Bridges Soon to Be In Operation in County

Zanesville may boast of a bridge where you can "turn in the middle" but Circleville residents will soon be speaking of the "twin bridges."

Police Chief William McCrady's reference to the "twin bridges" Tuesday resulted in a checkup that revealed Circleville will soon have "twin bridges" open to traffic.

Improvements are under way on the old Hargus creek bridge on the Island road at the end of W. High street. Harry Griner, county engineer, said the bridge will be opened to traffic in about a week or 10 days.

The old bridge had been abandoned when the sharp curve on the highway was eliminated and a new bridge constructed with federal aid. Although the project included removal of the old structure, this branch of the improvement was eliminated by Mr. Griner.

Since the county has purchased the old Ruggles packing plant on W. High street and made numerous improvements around the building, the old bridge will work satisfactorily in connecting the Island road with Route 22. Use of the old bridge will remove the necessity of making a sharp turn at the roadway connecting the Island road and Route 22.

Riprapping and filling around the old bridge was done with relief labor, or men who work for the county in return for relief orders.

YANKEE CLIPPER READY TO START ANOTHER FLIGHT

HORTA, Azores, March 28—The 42-ton Yankee Clipper rode at anchor in Horta harbor today awaiting the signal to take off on the next stage of its trans-Atlantic inspection flight.

Tomorrow or Thursday, the Clipper, the first plane built for mass passenger transport ever to cross the Atlantic, will fly to Lisbon, Marseilles, and Foynes, Ireland. Then, in leisurely fashion, it will return to the United States.

Carrying 21 crew members and technicians, the 74-passenger flying boat landed here yesterday morning after a 2,880-mile sky jaunt from Baltimore, Md., in 17 hours, 32 minutes. Average speed was 165 miles per hour.

"It was a very comfortable journey," said Captain Harold Gray, "and no one was tired."

HIT-SKIP VICTIM TAKEN TO HOME MUCH IMPROVED

Orin Young, 47, of the Ridge district, Fairfield county, injured in an auto accident last Wednesday, was discharged from Berger hospital Tuesday to return to his home.

SEAPLANE BASES TO BE PLACED ALONG COASTS

WASHINGTON, March 28—Establishment of seaplane bases every 15 miles along the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Florida and along the Gulf of Mexico is contemplated by the Civil Aeronautics authority.

The program was announced today following completion of arrangements calling for installation of 51 seaplane floats in New England and New York City. The National Youth Administration will provide labor for the project.

A half-dozen floats will be put in at Boston while 15 will be installed in Connecticut.

In New York, 30 floats will be installed, including ten at the Wall Street skyport, 14 at 23rd street and the East river and six at Floyd Bennett field.

Capt. Robert S. Fogg, seaplane consultant of the C.A.A., will leave this week for conferences with N.Y.A. representatives in Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Louisiana for installation in those areas.

trict shortages and in addition "that revenues formely earmarked for the public school fund in excess of estimates be appropriated for this purpose."

He drew attention to the existing school deficit of $17,422,000 and remarked that with reasonable improvement in business the school deficit should be reduced in the next two years "by at least $5,000,000."

Bricker pointed to the downward curve in school population and the upward swing in the number of persons reaching the age of 65 as the reason for the necessity for stepping up the appropriation for old age pensions from $58,500,000 in the last biennium to $65,000,000 for the next two years.

The governor bore out a prediction of Sen. Fred L. Adams (R-Bowling Green) chairman of the senate finance committee, made exclusively to International News Service several weeks ago when he said:

"The aggregate recommended savings for this biennium compared with the last biennium in salaries, wages, and daily operating cost of all departments, boards, bureaus, commissions and instrumentalities of government, is over $18,000,000."

Subdivisions To Pare

He called on local government and political subdivisions to likewise pare the cost of local government as "great encouragement to business."

Pointing out that $302,700,000 was expended in the last biennium with added obligations left over as deficits amounting to $6,200,000, Bricker declared:

"For the current biennium, the aggregate recommendation is $302,032,000 of which three million dollars is for payment of inherited deficit, thus leaving the aggregate recommended cost of operating the state government for this biennium $299,032,000.

"The total recommended reduction including all items in the cost of government for this biennium is $9,965,000—in other words, a reduction for the current biennium, including all items of government cost, of practically ten million dollars."

CHAMPAIGN, ILL., INDICTS MAN IN ANTI-CRIME WAR

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 28—More indictments were expected today after the special grand jury investigating alleged vice and gambling conditions in Champaign returned true bills against former Sheriff Clarence W. Roth, three alleged racketeers and two women.

Roth, who ended a four year term in December, 1938, was indicted on three bribery counts and another charging he perjured himself before the jury. The sheriff was accused of having accepted bribes to permit operation of gambling resorts in the vicinity of the University of Illinois.

It was the fatal shooting of William Spurrier, 19, of Toledo, O., a sophomore at the university, which precipitated the current inquiry. Spurrier was shot as he stood outside an alleged disorderly house. Mrs. Margaret Strothers, Negress, faces a murder charge in connection with Spurrier's death.

The others indicted were named for pandering, operation of disorderly houses and perjury.

TWO-YEAR SIEGE ENDS AS FRANCO TAKES CAPITAL

Madrilenos paraded enthusiastically, shouting Franco slogans and gleefully giving each other the Fascist salute.

Madrid police took no action to curb the hilarious, half hysterical celebrations.

Soldiers Discard Weapons

Along with the civilians, the streets were full of Republican soldiers who had thrown down their weapons and abandoned their trenches in the rapture that peace brings after war.

In more practical ways, too, the metamorphosis of Madrid from a bomb-scarred, beleagured city to a capital released from conflict progressed swiftly.

Shrewd store keepers, unwilling to risk a financial loss, refused all Republican bank notes. Only Fascist or foreign money was accepted.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the troops of General Jose Miaja, chief of the Madrid junta, were abandoning the entire Madrid front.

BIG CITY BLOC ENDS FIGHT ON FARM MEASURE

Parity Payment Proposal Assured Following Decision

WASHINGTON, March 28—Big city delegations, which have been fighting a $250,000,000 appropriation for parity payments to farmers, today capitulated thus clearing the path for passage of the record-breaking $1,067,000,000 agriculture department supply bill.

The decision to yield came after five days of intense effort by the metropolitan members to force the powerful house farm bloc into an agreement to support the $150,000,000 W. P. A. request in exchange for urban backing for the unbudgeted parity payments.

Steadfast refusal of farm bloc leaders to bow to the open log-rolling tactics of the New York City, Chicago and Philadelphia delegations was credited with breaking the impasse. Farm bloc spokesmen predicted the supply bill would pass late today with the parity payment funds intact and without any "trade" on the question of relief.

House administration leaders, backing the parity payment proposal, received part credit for ending the deadlock which caused the house to spend four days of debate on a bill which it annually passes in two.

Chairman Taylor, of the house appropriations committee, deliberately delayed a committee vote on the W. P. A. appropriation scheduled for today, frankly asserting that he did not "wish to become party to the log-rolling" which began behind the scenes Wednesday and finally was forced out into the open two days later.

The appropriations committee is threatening to reduce the $150,000,000 relief request. The city delegations have been striving to force a bargain which would guarantee approval of the $150,000,000 without any reduction, in return for their support for the $250,000,000 in parity payments.

Rep. Sabath (D) of Illinois, who has been leading the battle of the metropolitan groups, said today he would vote for the parity payment appropriation.

TRUE OHIO COST SHOWN, HOUSE MEMBER DECLARES

COLUMBUS, March 28 — The people of Ohio know the cost of their state government for the first time in many years, Senator Fred L. Adams (R-Bowling Green) chairman of the senate finance committee, said today in commenting on Governor Bricker's budget message to the general assembly last night.

"The executive budget, which includes an inherited deficit from the Davey administration," Adams said, "shows an aggregate saving of eighteen million dollars over the last biennium.

"The platform of the Republican party pledged this administration to a a reduction in the cost of state government. In carrying out that pledge ample funds were provided for relief, old age pensions and the necessary functions of state government.

"Governor Bricker has the courage to inform the citizens of Ohio the true financial condition of the state."

There will be many Circleville youngsters walking to school next week unless they purchase bicycle tags soon.

Police Chief William McCrady said Tuesday that only 135 bicycle licenses for 1939 have been sold to date. The tags must be used on bikes April 1. Last year a total of 502 was sold, the chief explained, indicating that many youngsters are waiting until the last minute. The tags cost 25 cents.

visability of making no anti-German commitments during his forthcoming visit to London. On the other hand, Britain is believed trying to frighten him into a state of mind conducive to Anglo-French collaboration instead. The view is held in Berlin that this accounts for the prominence given by the British press to Germany's activities regarding Danzig.

Should Not Be Crisis

"Unless somebody's foot slips," one observer said, "German-Polish relations should not enter on a crisis at present."

Reports of large-scale Polish military preparations brought no direct comment other than denials, but the inspired German press and official statements assumed a tone markedly similar to that used against Prague before the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

Nazi press dispatches claimed that German women and children in the Polish corridor had been beaten for speaking their own language — and a semi-official pronouncement voiced the German government's "amazement" at this.

Twin Bridges Soon to Be In Operation in County

Zanesville may boast of a bridge where you can "turn in the middle" but Circleville residents will soon be speaking of the "twin bridges."

Police Chief William McCrady's reference to the "twin bridges" Tuesday resulted in a checkup that revealed Circleville will soon have "twin bridges" open to traffic.

Improvements are under way on the old Hargus creek bridge on the Island road at the end of W. High street. Harry Griner, county engineer, said the bridge will be opened to traffic in about a week or 10 days.

The old bridge had been abandoned when the sharp curve on the highway was eliminated and a new bridge constructed with federal aid. Although the project included removal of the old structure, this branch of the improvement was eliminated by Mr. Griner.

Since the county has purchased the old Ruggles packing plant on W. High street and made numerous improvements around the building, the old bridge will work satisfactorily in connecting the Island road with Route 22. Use of the old bridge will remove the necessity of making a sharp turn at the roadway connecting the Island road and Route 22.

Riprapping and filling around the old bridge was done with relief labor, or men who work for the county in return for relief orders.

YANKEE CLIPPER READY TO START ANOTHER FLIGHT

HORTA, Azores, March 28—The 42-ton Yankee Clipper rode at anchor in Horta harbor today awaiting the signal to take off on the next stage of its trans-Atlantic inspection flight.

Tomorrow or Thursday, the Clipper, the first plane built for mass passenger transport ever to cross the Atlantic, will fly to Lisbon, Marseilles, and Foynes, Ireland. Then, in leisurely fashion, it will return to the United States.

Carrying 21 crew members and technicians, the 74-passenger flying boat landed here yesterday morning after a 2,880-mile sky jaunt from Baltimore, Md., in 17 hours, 32 minutes. Average speed was 165 miles per hour.

"It was a very comfortable journey," said Captain Harold Gray, "and no one was tired."

HIT-SKIP VICTIM TAKEN TO HOME MUCH IMPROVED

Orin Young, 47, of the Ridge district, Fairfield county, injured in an auto accident last Wednesday, was discharged from Berger hospital Tuesday to return to his home.

Young suffered three fractures of the left leg, cuts and bruises, when he was struck by a hit-skip motorist along Route 22 about two miles east of the Fairfield-Pickaway county line.

COON NOT KUHN

The driver of a car involved in the accident in which George Rader, E. Mill street, was injured last week was George Coon, 24, of Ashville, R. F. D., and not George Kuhn. Mr. Rader, an employe of The Herald, is improving from a concussion he suffered when thrown from his motorcycle.

SEAPLANE BASES TO BE PLACED ALONG COASTS

WASHINGTON, March 28—Establishment of seaplane bases every 15 miles along the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Florida and along the Gulf of Mexico is contemplated by the Civil Aeronautics authority.

The program was announced today following completion of arrangements calling for installation of 51 seaplane floats in New England and New York City. The National Youth Administration will provide labor for the project.

A half-dozen floats will be put in at Boston while 15 will be installed in Connecticut.

In New York, 30 floats will be installed, including ten at the Wall Street skyport, 14 at 23rd street and the East river and six at Floyd Bennett field.

Capt. Robert S. Fogg, seaplane consultant of the C.A.A., will leave this week for conferences with N.Y.A. representatives in Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Louisiana for installation in those areas.

trict shortages and in addition "that revenues formely earmarked for the public school fund in excess of estimates be appropriated for this purpose."

He drew attention to the existing school deficit of $17,422,000 and remarked that with reasonable improvement in business the school deficit should be reduced in the next two years "by at least $5,000,000."

Bricker pointed to the downward curve in school population and the upward swing in the number of persons reaching the age of 65 as the reason for the necessity for stepping up the appropriation for old age pensions from $58,500,000 in the last biennium to $65,000,000 for the next two years.

The governor bore out a prediction of Sen. Fred L. Adams (R-Bowling Green) chairman of the senate finance committee, made exclusively to International News Service several weeks ago when he said:

"The aggregate recommended savings for this biennium compared with the last biennium in salaries, wages, and daily operating cost of all departments, boards, bureaus, commissions and instrumentalities of government, is over $18,000,000."

Subdivisions To Pare

He called on local government and political subdivisions to likewise pare the cost of local government as "great encouragement to business."

Pointing out that $302,700,000 was expended in the last biennium with added obligations left over as deficits amounting to $6,200,000, Bricker declared:

"For the current biennium, the aggregate recommendation is $302,032,000 of which three million dollars is for payment of inherited deficit, thus leaving the aggregate recommended cost of operating the state government for this biennium $299,032,000.

"The total recommended reduction including all items in the cost of government for this biennium is $9,965,000—in other words, a reduction for the current biennium, including all items of government cost, of practically ten million dollars."

CHAMPAIGN, ILL., INDICTS MAN IN ANTI-CRIME WAR

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 28—More indictments were expected today after the special grand jury investigating alleged vice and gambling conditions in Champaign returned true bills against former Sheriff Clarence W. Roth, three alleged racketeers and two women.

Roth, who ended a four year term in December, 1938, was indicted on three bribery counts and another charging he perjured himself before the jury. The sheriff was accused of having accepted bribes to permit operation of gambling resorts in the vicinity of the University of Illinois.

It was the fatal shooting of William Spurrier, 19, of Toledo, O., a sophomore at the university, which precipitated the current inquiry. Spurrier was shot as he stood outside an alleged disorderly house. Mrs. Margaret Strothers, Negress, faces a murder charge in connection with Spurrier's death.

The others indicted were named for pandering, operation of disorderly houses and perjury.

TWO-YEAR SIEGE ENDS AS FRANCO TAKES CAPITAL

National Troops Greeted By Jovial Populace; Little Resistance Faced

Madrilenos paraded enthusiastically, shouting Franco slogans and gleefully giving each other the Fascist salute.

Madrid police took no action to curb the hilarious, half hysterical celebrations.

Soldiers Discard Weapons

Along with the civilians, the streets were full of Republican soldiers who had thrown down their weapons and abandoned their trenches in the rapture that peace brings after war.

In more practical ways, too, the metamorphosis of Madrid from a bomb-scarred, beleagured city to a capital released from conflict progressed swiftly.

Shrewd store keepers, unwilling to risk a financial loss, refused all Republican bank notes. Only Fascist or foreign money was accepted.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the troops of General Jose Miaja, chief of the Madrid junta, were abandoning the entire Madrid front.

ADMISSION TAX HIKE URGED TO PAY FOR RELIEF

Assembly Session May Be Prolonged By Deadlock Over Matching

DEADLINE TO BE PASSED

Counties In Good Shape Would Not Require New Levy

COLUMBUS, March 28—Life of the 93rd general assembly will be prolonged by the complex poor relief problem, members of the joint legislative committee on relief predicted today as they admitted their report would not be completed by the April 1 deadline.

Foreseeing a long battle when relief legislation is eventually presented to the legislature, Rep. L. H. Myers (R-Allen) and Rep. R. K. Shaw (R-Madison), committee members, deplored "lack of enthusiasm" among committeemen and said legislators would be detained in Columbus "too meet the issue."

The resolution creating the relief committee specifically stated that a report must be submitted by April 1. Myers and Shaw estimated the report would be two weeks late while Sen. Don Thomas (D-Dayton), another committee member, said an "additional 10 days" will be required to compile the report.

Myers, who declared he did not see how "it would be possible" to avoid new or additional taxes in formulating permanent poor relief legislation, advanced the idea that an admission tax hike would solve the 50-50 matching problem.

Some Could Use It

"Why not," Myers suggested to the reporter, "levy an additional admission tax with the state and counties sharing the burden equally. For instance, if a three mill boost was proposed, the state could levy one-and-one half mills and needy counties one-and-one half mills. Counties not needing relief funds could overlook the proposition."

Both Myers and Shaw opined that "relief is here to stay" and before the Assembly adjourned sine die it would have experienced a "troublesome siege" in either adopting the committee's recommendations or working out the problem in its own way.

Somewhat irritated over numerous delays and lack of attendance at relief committee meetings, Myers believed that "politics" would play an important role in completed legislation.

"There is an awful lot of 'what is going to happen to me' thoughts among committee members," Myers said.

Many "Educated"

Defending his thought that "relief is here to stay," Shaw insisted that reliefers would not accept temporary jobs in agriculture and that young persons were being "educated into relief". Many young persons, he added, are coming "to depend upon relief."

Administration leaders are hopeful that the legislature will adjourn the first week in May but Myers and Shaw, in view of the poor relief situation, were of the opinion that adjournment would be closer to June 1.

AUTO-TRUCK CRASH BASIS FOR $172 DAMAGE ACTION

The State Automobile Mutual Insurance company, Columbus, filed suit in Common Pleas court Monday against Floyd Leonard and Paul Leonard, Ashville, seeking $172.90 damages.

The suit is based on an auto-truck accident July 23, 1938. It explains that the plaintiff insured the auto of Fred Dietsch of Portsmouth, involved in an accident with a truck owned by Floyd Leonard and operated by Paul Leonard. The petition charges negligence and carelessness in the operation of the truck.

Billy's Goat is a full brother, twin in fact, to Billy Goat and you've heard a lot about this "gentleman" and at sometime you may have been on the receiving end, if you were lucky enough to have been a member of a real lodge with that side degree to it. Our school kiddies are to show you all about Billy Friday night at the school auditorium. We'll try and be there and see for ourselves if Billy has lost any of that old time stuff he used to have.

How he just happened to get at it he doesn't exactly remember, but he did just the same and liked it so well that he has been a railway mail clerk since April 1904, now about 35 years, A. W. Boone told us. And all this time he has been on an N. & W. mail car—and he hopes to get in a lot more time yet before he retires.

The pet fox squirrel we told you about a few days ago as having made its home with Sam Gregg and being well fed and cared for, and which had suddenly disappeared, is now quartered about the woods up close to Charles and Mrs. Hokum's. But it has the appearance of having been in some fierce fights, owning scratched and torn ears. And in squirreldom court that may mean another divorce or something.

White corn planting is yet a few weeks away, the getting ready for it keeps our farmers plenty busy and at it. With some, seed corn is a pro and con question, but in talking with quite a few of the farm boys within the last several days, think the hybrid seed is to be generally planted in this territory. Talked with Harold Odaffer, who is assisting Roger Hedges in shipping and sales and he said business was good. One farmer, he said, had just taken out ten bushels and another big acreage operator, more than five times this amount. So it would seem that hybrid corn is no longer an experiment and has come to stay.

In talking over at John May's, Monday, about the outlook for a few peach cobblers the coming Summer, Mrs. May, who answered our call, thought so far the prospects were fine for a good peach crop but said a severe freeze ahead would cause a lot of damage. Said the orchard contained about 700 fruit bearing trees.

INDICTMENT FOR FORGERY AGAINST HUSTON ENDED

An indictment charging forgery against Leeman Huston, 42, of Laurelville Route 3, was dismissed in Common Pleas court Monday for lack of evidence in the case.

Huston, who has been in the county jail since last September, was taken to Hocking county to face a forgery charge.

GRUBBS FINED $100

Charles Grubbs, 44, of Circleville Route 5, was fined $100 and costs in Squire B. T. Hedges' court Monday on a charge of driving when intoxicated Sunday on Route 104. Grubbs arranged to pay. The charge was filed by a state patrolman.

AT THE CIRCLE

Walter Wanger's adventure romance, "Trade Winds," with Fredric March as the hero and Joan Bennett as the heroine, at the Circle theatre tomorrow and Thursday provides the movie patrons of the Circle theatre with the thrills and excitement important to first-rank motion picture entertainment.

Seven exotic countries of the Far East provide the setting of the new picture, although the story begins and ends in San Francisco where a man is murdered and a girl begins a chase which leads half-way around the globe. Tay Garnett, who is listed as the producer and director of "Trade Winds," also conceived the original idea for the story. More than that, Mr. Garnett, in his own yacht, equipped as a "floating studio," photographed the thousands of feet of brilliant background shots which are dramatically and effectively incorporated in the production.

AT THE GRAND

Slim Summerville and Arthur Treacher, the two tallest comedians in motion pictures, appear together for the first time in "Up The River," the new 20th Century-Fox picture coming to the Grand theatre on a double bill.

When Preston Foster, Tony Martin, Phyllis Brooks and other members of the cast learned from Director Alfred Werker that the big boys had been assigned to the picture, much speculation was made as to who was the taller.

"From what I've seen of the boys," Tony Martin said, "I'm inclined to think Arthur is just a shade taller than Slim."

Phyllis Brooks didn't think so and neither did Preston Foster. "We're sticking with Slim," they insisted.

So Werker got a tape measure and stood the boys up against a wall—a prison wall, by the way.

Treacher, at six feet four and a half, was winner by a narrow margin.

$894 and up
delivered at Flint, Mich. *Subject to change without notice. Transportation, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra.
FIRST time we saw the blueprints for this Buick thirty-niner we knew we had something pretty special for folks who like action in their travels.
It had eight eager cylinders in a mighty Dynaflash engine — and they could make a scared jack rabbit eat dust whenever the word was given!
It had a ride we promptly dubbed "full float" — that's how soft its stout coiled springs are in action.
It had a view, from windows and windshields as much as 412 square inches bigger—and it had style that has already altered the pattern on many another car-stylist's drawing board.
So we looked it all over—and went a step further. We decided a car so plainly meant for action needed to have a price that would get action for it!
Now it isn't easy to build such a traveler—rich in reliable Buick quality clear down to the metals it's made of—and still give it a price to rub elbows with the sixes.
But look around, match up the price tags, and you'll find that this great straight-eight lists for less than some cars with two fewer cylinders!
It comes complete with equipment that's extra in many another instance —yet the figures still read lower than on Buick of a year ago.
So when you see this Buick you not only see the car, but the one big value of the year. That's why we're anxious to have you try it — it's a car with a winning way about it, and a winning price tag in the bargain!

On every hand you see evidence that the American railroads deliver the finest transportation service in the world—a service essential to the daily lives of everybody. And everybody—the farmer, businessman, worker, alike—is affected directly or indirectly by railroad depression or prosperity. Railroads need, and ask, no more than an opportunity to earn a living under rules, regulations and conditions which give them an opportunity to meet competition on equal terms. This is the purpose of the proposed Transportation Act 1939 now being considered by Congress.

ADMISSION TAX HIKE URGED TO PAY FOR RELIEF

Assembly Session May Be Prolonged By Deadlock Over Matching

DEADLINE TO BE PASSED

Counties In Good Shape Would Not Require New Levy

COLUMBUS, March 28—Life of the 93rd general assembly will be prolonged by the complex poor relief problem, members of the joint legislative committee on relief predicted today as they admitted their report would not be completed by the April 1 deadline.

Foreseeing a long battle when relief legislation is eventually presented to the legislature, Rep. L. H. Myers (R-Allen) and Rep. R. K. Shaw (R-Madison), committee members, deplored "lack of enthusiasm" among committeemen and said legislators would be detained in Columbus "too meet the issue."

The resolution creating the relief committee specifically stated that a report must be submitted by April 1. Myers and Shaw estimated the report would be two weeks late while Sen. Don Thomas (D-Dayton), another committee member, said an "additional 10 days" will be required to compile the report.

Myers, who declared he did not see how "it would be possible" to avoid new or additional taxes in formulating permanent poor relief legislation, advanced the idea that an admission tax hike would solve the 50-50 matching problem.

Some Could Use It

"Why not," Myers suggested to the reporter, "levy an additional admission tax with the state and counties sharing the burden equally. For instance, if a three mill boost was proposed, the state could levy one-and-one half mills and needy counties one-and-one half mills. Counties not needing relief funds could overlook the proposition."

Both Myers and Shaw opined that "relief is here to stay" and before the Assembly adjourned sine die it would have experienced a "troublesome siege" in either adopting the committee's recommendations or working out the problem in its own way.

Somewhat irritated over numerous delays and lack of attendance at relief committee meetings, Myers believed that "politics" would play an important role in completed legislation.

"There is an awful lot of 'what is going to happen to me' thoughts among committee members," Myers said.

Many "Educated"

Defending his thought that "relief is here to stay," Shaw insisted that reliefers would not accept temporary jobs in agriculture and that young persons were being "educated into relief". Many young persons, he added, are coming "to depend upon relief."

Administration leaders are hopeful that the legislature will adjourn the first week in May but Myers and Shaw, in view of the poor relief situation, were of the opinion that adjournment would be closer to June 1.

AUTO-TRUCK CRASH BASIS FOR $172 DAMAGE ACTION

The State Automobile Mutual Insurance company, Columbus, filed suit in Common Pleas court Monday against Floyd Leonard and Paul Leonard, Ashville, seeking $172.90 damages.

The suit is based on an auto-truck accident July 23, 1938. It explains that the plaintiff insured the auto of Fred Dietsch of Portsmouth, involved in an accident with a truck owned by Floyd Leonard and operated by Paul Leonard. The petition charges negligence and carelessness in the operation of the truck.

How he just happened to get at it he doesn't exactly remember, but he did just the same and liked it so well that he has been a railway mail clerk since April 1904, now about 35 years, A. W. The pet fox squirrel we told you about a few days ago as having made its home with Sam Gregg and being well fed and cared for, and which had suddenly disappeared, is now quartered about the woods up close to Charles and Mrs. Hokum's. But it has the appearance of having been in some fierce fights, owning scratched and torn ears. And in squirreldom court that may mean another divorce or something.

While corn planting is yet a few weeks away, the getting ready for it keeps our farmers plenty busy and at it. With some, seed corn is a pro and con question, but in talking with quite a few of the farm boys within the last several days, think the hybrid seed is to be generally planted in this territory. Talked with Harold Odaffer, who is assisting Roger Hedges in shipping and sales and he said business was good. One farmer, he said, had just taken out ten bushels and another big acreage operator, more than five times this amount. So it would seem that hybrid corn is no longer an experiment and has come to stay.

In talking over at John May's, Monday, about the outlook for a few peach cobblers the coming Summer, Mrs. May, who answered our call, thought so far the prospects were fine for a good peach crop but said a severe freeze ahead would cause a lot of damage. Said the orchard contained about 700 fruit bearing trees.

KAISER SIZES UP HITLER

MANY an American in these strange years has wondered what old Kaiser Wilhelm, brooding over the past in his Dutch retreat and peering out curiously at the changing times, thinks of his successor. For 20 years he has been watching the changing fortunes of the German government and people. For seven years he has watched and studied Hitler. He has kept silent. But recently a writer in the magazine Ken, who visited the old Kaiser, has raised the curtain. Wilhelm is reported as saying:

"There's a man alone, without family, without children, without God. Why should he be human? Oh, without doubt he's sincere; but this very excessive sincerity keeps him apart, out of touch with men and realities. He builds legions, but he does not build a nation. A nation is created by families, a religion, traditions. It is made up of the hearts of mothers, the wisdom of fathers, the joy and exuberance of children.

"Over there (pointing toward Germany) an all-swallowing state, disdainful of human dignities and the ancient structure of our race, sets itself up in place of everything else. And the man who alone incorporates in himself this whole state has neither a God to honor, a dynasty to preserve nor a past to consult.

"This man could bring home victories to our people every year without bringing their either glory or danger. But of our Germany, which was a nation of poets and musicians, artists and scientists and soldiers, he has made a nation of hysterics and hermits, engulfed in a mob and led by a thousand liars and fanatics."

It would be interesting now to have Wilhelm's views of Mussolini and Stalin; but perhaps he is not much interested in them.

NOT A BAD TAX

INCOME tax payments made this month for the first quarter were lower than for the same period last year, but were about $75,000,000 more than the Treasury had anticipated. They reflected last year's business decline, which seems to have been as hard on Uncle Sam as on individual nieces and nephews.

No tax is loved. The income tax, however, is accepted, if not cheerfully, at least philosophically, as a tax which comes as close as any to being reasonable, just and fair. Most citizens would be glad to pay the government a bigger income tax, if it meant their own incomes were bigger.

Shivering, scientists find, is nature's way for making chilly people warm, but it's no use telling that to a fellow when he's shivering.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

DUCE ENRAGED, MAY DESERT AXIS

WASHINGTON—Those who have reason to know say that when Mussolini heard his axis-partner had taken over Bohemia and Moravia he jumped around like a madman.

Hitler had told him in advance about his plans for the autonomous republic of Slovakia, but had failed completely to mention the Nazi appetite for the rest of Czechoslovakia.

Allied diplomats saw in Mussolini's irate reaction the first real ray of hope for weaning him away from Hitler. It was this which caused the French to get busy exploring the possibility of finding concessions for Italy.

For the first time they thought they saw the beginning of another 1915, when Italy deserted the Triple Alliance for the Allies.

Only difficulty is that Allied diplomats have grasped at this ray of hope too many times—and only found disillusionment.

REAL G. O. P. AUTHORS

Real authors of the House Judiciary Committee minority report censuring Madame Perkins were several master minds in the Republican National Committee. Here is how they put over the rap at the Administration.

The subcommittee considering the resolution to impeach Miss Perkins was composed of three Democrats and two Republicans. Last week, after months of deliberating, the committee unanimously agreed that the charges against Miss Perkins did not warrant impeachment and selected Representative Sam Hobbs of Alabama to write a report to this effect.

Hobbs circulated copies of his draft among the members of the subcommittee for suggestions and corrections. All returned them promptly, except Representative Wallace E. Pierce, upstate New York Republican, who kept his copy for several days.

Reason for his delay was that he sent the report to the National Committee where, in the absence of Chairman John Hamilton, several assistants decided that it would be clever politics if Pierce and the other GOP member, Representative Louis E. Graham of Pennsylvania, reneged on their approval of the Hobbs report. Instead they were to file a minority report panning Miss Perkins. Pierce and Graham agreed to the scheme and several days later they were supplied with the minority report which now bears their names.

SCOTCH DOUGLAS

Scotch William O. Douglas, Supreme Court nominee, will soon be on the payroll at $20,000 a year. But he can't forget the impecunious days when, working his way through Whitman College, he lived in a tent and washed his clothes in the river.

After the last Jackson Day dinner, which cost $100 a plate, Douglas felt troubled. He decided to start economizing at once.

Leaving the Mayflower Hotel, he hailed a cab, drove to the District line which is the end of a cab fare zone, got out and walked the rest of the way to his home in Silver Spring, Maryland.

He felt much better. He had saved

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up early and soon out into a rain that brought smiles to the faces of practically every farm family in Pickaway county. Plowing had become a near impossible task, but will be easy from here on. Heard much chat about fishing attempts Sunday, but no success stories. Believe it or not, but fishing never has been good on Sunday. Once in a long while someone will make good catch on the Sabbath, but for the most part anglers return with empty creels. Seems as though the fish rest on the first day of the week or refuse to have any part in encouraging those who possibly should be in church.

It was many years ago that I learned that fishing on Sunday is largely a waste of time. I was about ready to depart for my pet angling hole when I ran full face onto a Baptist minister. He knew where I was going and right there gave me a lecture on skipping Sunday school, even though I did not attend his church. He talked for almost a quarter of an hour and finally wound up by saying that on such a beautiful day he himself would rather be out along a stream than indoors. "However," he said, "you report to me of your success." I reported on my lack of success and then the minister, who loved fishing as well as any man, told me that Sunday always is the worst fish day of the week.

Met Dan Ryan, of Columbus, who was in the furniture business here for 45 years and who drops into the ville now and then to check on his local properties. Noted with interest that the police department is doing something to slow traffic on Court street. That, I think, is as it should be. Passed the time of day with Frank Fischer, the educator, and later learned of efforts that are being made to correct lighting conditions in the schools. Really, it is cheaper and much more sensible to buy electricity than glasses. I know, for it was only yesterday that Dr. Staley delivered a new pair of "eyes" to the scrivener.

Everywhere about the ville did find indications of business pick-up. Seems as though most folk are preparing to fixup personally for Easter and many the housewife is preparing for home improvements. Wish someone would tip me off on the dates for housecleaning out our way. I have a business trip I would like to make.

There goes Virgil Cress, president of Kiwanis, and he wearing a big smile because of three 100 percent meetings in three weeks. First time in history of the club. Rotary frequently has full attendance, but not so Kiwanis. A fine record Virgil is setting.

Home through the rain to spend the evening before the grate, never stirring and finding much of interest in a book I had somehow overlooked. Then in the refrigerator did find a fine cut of beef that made a great sandwich, washed down with a beaker of milk. To bed then, and not too long awake.

LAFF-A-DAY

"He's trying out the boat before he buys it."

DIET AND HEALTH

Recommends Lead Poisoning Control

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SEVERAL years ago a New York physician bought an old Colonial house in Greenwich, Connecticut. In modernizing the plumbing a copper hot water tank was installed.

Two years later the doctor noticed uncertainty of walking on a rough road in the dark; he could not maintain his balance.

An airedale dog was noticed to act queerly, refuse food and fall into a stupor. A veterinary diagnosed rabies and the dog was shot.

Memory Impaired

The following winter the doctor noticed such impairment in memory in himself as to cause him grave concern. It was a defect of memory for immediate recent events, such as remembering what he read on the page before. He felt it was an impairment of cerebral function probably due to age. When the snow cleared off he again experienced difficulty in walking on a rough road, and many accidental collisions with furniture.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

He told his wife that he felt he had something serious the matter with him and had decided to consult a doctor. He then learned the following facts:

The family cat had developed an inco-ordination similar to his. The cat had fallen heavily while trying to jump to a window sill, a thing he had long been doing with ease.

His wife had noticed a numbness in her fingers, so that she could hardly hold a needle to sew. She had regarded this as an inevitable consequence of the march of time until the housekeeper had begun to complain of numbness of the legs.

Toxic Agent

The doctor had thought his trouble a progressive organic nervous disease, but now it looked as if a toxic agent to which they had all been exposed was responsible.

At this point he was told of some similar cases found by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company that had been caused by chronic lead poisoning.

An investigation showed that everyone in the household was "leaded." It was also found that the water from the hot water tank (in which all the vegetables the family ate were boiled) contained 0.18 milligrams of lead per liter. The cat had eaten these vegetables. The dog had been fed such food for two years. The plumber who had put in the tank used lead paint on the pipe joints, and all the inside joints had been wiped with lead solder.

Has a Sequel

Under proper treatment the symptoms abated, and then a most astonishing sequel occurred.

The proper treatment for lead poisoning includes plentiful green vegetables. When they returned to New York the symptoms of numbness returned and they found the vegetables they were eating were covered with lead arsenate.

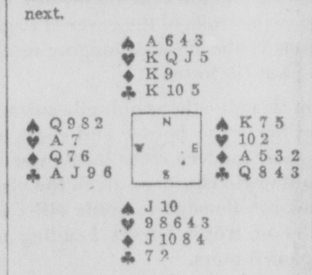

Lead arsenate spray is used especially on apples, but also on nearly every kind of fruit and green vegetable. It is the most effective and economical agent against insects. At one table of a team-of-four game, South passed North's opening bid of 1-Spade on this deal and West decided to leave it in, feeling that setting his vulnerable opponents at 100 a trick would produce a good score. It was set two tricks.

At the other table, South bid 1-No trump after the spade bid, and North then bid 2-Hearts. South felt he had a raise for this and took it to 3-Hearts, which was made by the kind of play that developed. Only one trick was lost in each suit.

It would have been interesting to see how other people would bid this deal, if it had been played at more tables. Most players in the West position would have doubled or bid 1-No trump if South passed the opening bid of 1-Spade. And some North players would have preferred a short-suit minor bid, or No trump, to the four-card major suit.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

WHEN CLARK MARTIN appeared at the door of Jim's room just after Jim had passed the crisis, the doctor strode across the floor, his professional anger aroused.

"What are you doing here, and how did you get in?" he shot at the engineer, and Martin smiled apologetically.

"I heard Jim was—bad," he said, "and I came right over. I—nobody seemed to pay any attention to me, so I sort of—walked in."

"How long have you been here?" The doctor still was annoyed.

"I knocked on the door a while back. It was cracked open and I—I've just been standing here. There's no harm done. I thought maybe Mrs. Bennett here—" He hesitated over the name, and Lona's fears became a certainty. He knew! He had heard everything. "I thought perhaps the lady might need me—if there's anything I can do." He bowed to Lona, and the doctor's eyes softened.

"I'm sorry if I was rude," he said. "But I'd left strict orders about being disturbed. This is a hospital, you know. We can't have people walking in and out, disturbing our patients. I'll see that it doesn't happen again." His grim tone boded no good for some luckless attendant. "You didn't happen to come in a car, I suppose?" he asked of Martin, with a glance at Lona's drooping shoulders.

"Why, yes I did."

"You can drive Mrs. Bennett home if you really want to be of some help. She must get some rest. You're going home and go to bed!" This last in answer to Lona's quick protest. "Run along with you. Not another word!"

"But I—I can't—" she hesitated. She wanted to say she couldn't be alone with Clark Martin. Not even the time it would take to drive from the hospital to the Morriss home. She couldn't face that—now.

But even the strength to protest seemed to have left her. She found herself meekly following Martin, allowing him to guide her, a hand beneath her elbow, out through the now busy corridor, into the brightness of the morning sunshine.

Neither spoke while he turned the car in the hospital drive, and headed down toward Main street. Her head was awhirl and she was wondering, desperately, just how much he really knew. He was watching her from the corner of his shrewd eyes, she realized, and at last she turned to him, unable to bear the suspense any longer.

"You—heard?" she asked, simply.

He nodded, his eyes on the road. "I couldn't help hearing. As soon as he talked about the net, I knew. I suspected, anyhow, when I had that letter. I'd heard the whole story before, and I recognized the name."

He said no more, just stared ahead as if the matter were closed. Breathlessly, Lona waited.

"What are you going to do?" she brought out, finally, her voice quivering in spite of her efforts to keep it calm. "You can't tell on him!" she burst out, as he turned to her slowly. "You can't! You've got to keep quiet and forget the whole thing. He's innocent, you see. He told the whole thing over and over when he was out of his head. Somebody tampered with the net and he found it out—too late. You heard him back there. You heard what he said. You can't—surely you can't—" She was pleading, her words rushing out pell-mell. "You've got to help me! I'll get him away from here. We'll be gone before that detective comes back. You won't have to know . . ."

They had come to a stop in front of the stately Morriss verandah before she stopped talking. Gravely he snapped off the throbbing engine and turned to her in the glaring morning sunlight. His eyes were narrow and determined, and she realized that he had made no attempt to answer her, nor to interrupt her incoherent plea.

"I'd like to see Jim as soon as possible," he stated. "You see, I happen to know so much about this thing because I, too, have been working on a net of my own. Almost the same design as Rankin's I'd like to talk it over with him before you leave—"

"Before we leave?" Lona interrupted him, her voice sharp. "You mean—then you're not going to—"

"My dear girl! Jim's a friend of mine. He worked for me. He saved the life of one of my men. Surely you don't think I'd try to get him in trouble!" His voice was reproachful. "I'd like his advice on this net of mine. Outside of that I've no interest in your personal affairs. Except to say, if I may, that Jim has a very brave and gallant little wife." He smiled, and Lona choked suddenly.

"Oh, thank you, thank you!" she replied, allowing the tears she had kept back to spring to her eyes. "It's such a relief—you don't know how terrible it's been, knowing about—all this, and trying to keep it quiet. I've been so afraid, and I dared not tell anyone, not even the doctor."

He nodded sympathetically. "It's tough," he agreed. "And if there's anything a friend can do, I'm here."

"Oh, thank you again," Lona told him, wanting nothing so much as to get off by herself where she could stop thinking and just rest. "I'm sure Jim will thank you, too, when he's able to—know about things."

He let her go, then, without another word, sensing her tiredness. Mrs. Morriss had gone to the library for her day's work, and there was only Dinah, wide-eyed and curious, to greet her in the silent old house. She managed to satisfy the girl's barrage of questions as to Jim's condition and, declining even the steaming cup of tea Mrs. Morriss had ordered prepared for her, she crept upstairs to bed.

It was to be the best sleep she had had since Jim's accident. Down in the bottom of her mind she realized, as she drifted off, her worst fear had been of Clark Martin. To be assured by him, to know there was nothing to conceal from him any longer, was a load lifted from her shoulders. With Jim definitely on the way to getting well, she no longer felt so alone, so weighted down with responsibility. It would be easier now.

She slept on, until late afternoon. The sun was already peering obliquely through the scrolled lace of the curtains on the west window when she started up, a vaguely guilty feeling warning her of something she should be doing. For a moment the strangeness of Mrs. Morriss' gracious bedroom bewildered her. Then she came to full consciousness and sprang out of bed.

As she dressed, all her fears came flooding back. She remembered her appeal to Clark Martin, and his reassuring reply. He was a friend, he had said. She had believed him, then, the stupor of her tiredness dulling her brain. But now . . . somehow, it didn't ring true! Could she trust him? Had she trusted him too far already?

She was half afraid to answer when Dinah's inquiring tap came at the door just as she had finished dressing. She stood still in the middle of the room, her eyes searching the girl's face as Dinah wheeled through the door. But it was a smiling face, faintly amused at the lateness of the hour, a little chiding.

"Nobody called, then?" Lona asked, her relief finding voice. "There's been no word from the hospital?"

"Everything is fine. I called in just an hour ago. Jim was just waking up. He's better. There's nothing to worry about." Dinah's voice was soothing, and she relaxed.

"You're sure nobody else called?" she insisted, half afraid to feel safe. Would the police call here, she was wondering. Or would they just put a guard at the hospital? Maybe they'd even break in on Jim. Put him under arrest there in bed, while he was helpless, with nobody to protect him.

She gulped down Dinah's tasty supper hastily, afraid the girl was being hurt by her impatience, but unable to conceal it.

"I promised him I'd be there when he woke up," she told Dinah, apologetically. "I didn't intend to sleep so long. He may be wanting me."

She was glad when she was out of the house and could hurry as much as she pleased. She felt driven, somehow. Why, she couldn't explain.

Her fears crystallized as she came up to the hospital and saw, parked complacently, one of the green cars bearing the gold-lettered B. P. D., which signified the Brighton Police Department. Dismayed, she hurried her steps and, going past the clerk without inquiry, she sped down the corridor to Jim's room, her heart thumping hard.

KAISER SIZES UP HITLER

MANY an American in these strange years has wondered what old Kaiser Wilhelm, brooding over the past in his Dutch retreat and peering out curiously at the changing times, thinks of his successor. For 20 years he has been watching the changing fortunes of the German government and people. For seven years he has watched and studied Hitler. He has kept silent. But recently a writer in the magazine Ken, who visited the old Kaiser, has raised the curtain. Wilhelm is reported as saying:

"There's a man alone, without family, without children, without God. Why should he be human? Oh, without doubt he's sincere; but this very excessive sincerity keeps him apart, out of touch with men and realities. He builds legions, but he does not build a nation. A nation is created by families, a religion, traditions. It is made up of the hearts of mothers, the wisdom of fathers, the joy and exuberance of children.

"Over there (pointing toward Germany) an all-swallowing state, disdainful of human dignities and the ancient structure of our race, sets itself up in place of everything else. And the man who alone incorporates in himself this whole state has neither a God to honor, a dynasty to preserve nor a past to consult.

"This man could bring home victories to our people every year without bringing their either glory or danger. But of our Germany, which was a nation of poets and musicians, artists and scientists and soldiers, he has made a nation of hysterics and hermits, engulfed in a mob and led by a thousand liars and fanatics."

It would be interesting now to have Wilhelm's views of Mussolini and Stalin; but perhaps he is not much interested in them.

NOT A BAD TAX

INCOME tax payments made this month for the first quarter were lower than for the same period last year, but were about $75,000,000 more than the Treasury had anticipated. They reflected last year's business decline, which seems to have been as hard on Uncle Sam as on individual nieces and nephews.

No tax is loved. The income tax, however, is accepted, if not cheerfully, at least philosophically, as a tax which comes as close as any to being reasonable, just and fair. Most citizens would be glad to pay the government a bigger income tax, if it meant their own incomes were bigger.

Shivering, scientists find, is nature's way for making chilly people warm, but it's no use telling that to a fellow when he's shivering.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

DUCE ENRAGED, MAY DESERT AXIS

WASHINGTON—Those who have reason to know say that when Mussolini heard his axis-partner had taken over Bohemia and Moravia he jumped around like a madman.

Hitler had told him in advance about his plans for the autonomous republic of Slovakia, but had failed completely to mention the Nazi appetite for the rest of Czechoslovakia.

Allied diplomats saw in Mussolini's irate reaction the first real ray of hope for weaning him away from Hitler. It was this which caused the French to get busy exploring the possibility of finding concessions for Italy.

For the first time they thought they saw the beginning of another 1915, when Italy deserted the Triple Alliance for the Allies.

Only difficulty is that Allied diplomats have grasped at this ray of hope too many times—and only found disillusionment.

REAL G. O. P. AUTHORS

Real authors of the House Judiciary Committee minority report censuring Madame Perkins were several master minds in the Republican National Committee. Here is how they put over the rap at the Administration.

The subcommittee considering the resolution to impeach Miss Perkins was composed of three Democrats and two Republicans. Last week, after months of deliberating, the committee unanimously agreed that the charges against Miss Perkins did not warrant impeachment and selected Representative Sam Hobbs of Alabama to write a report to this effect.

Hobbs circulated copies of his draft among the members of the subcommittee for suggestions and corrections. All returned them promptly, except Representative Wallace E. Pierce, upstate New York Republican, who kept his copy for several days.

Reason for his delay was that he sent the report to the National Committee where, in the absence of Chairman John Hamilton, several assistants decided that it would be clever politics if Pierce and the other GOP member, Representative Louis E. Graham of Pennsylvania, reneged on their approval of the Hobbs report. Instead they were to file a minority report panning Miss Perkins. Pierce and Graham agreed to the scheme and several days later they were supplied with the minority report which now bears their names.

SCOTCH DOUGLAS

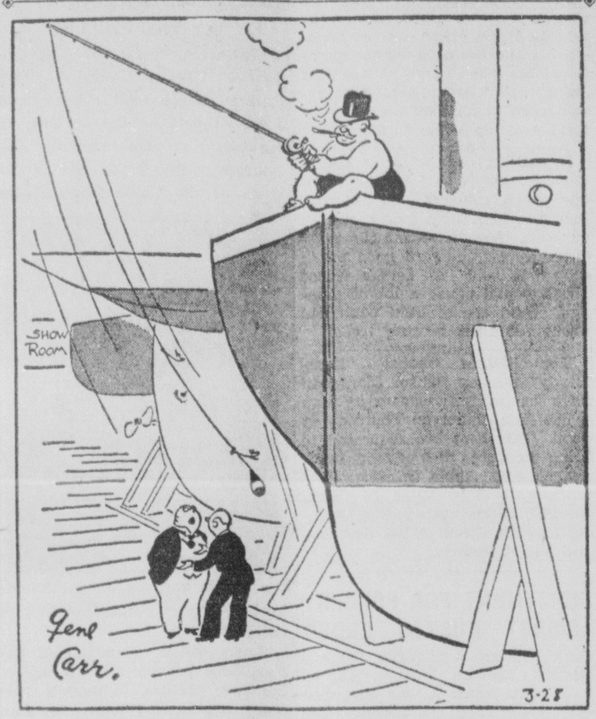

Scotch William O. Douglas, Supreme Court nominee, will soon be on the payroll at $20,000 a year. But he can't forget the impecunious days when, working his way through Whitman College, he lived in a tent and washed his clothes in the river.

After the last Jackson Day dinner, which cost $100 a plate, Douglas felt troubled. He decided to start economizing at once.

Leaving the Mayflower Hotel, he hailed a cab, drove to the District line which is the end of a cab fare zone, got out and walked the rest of the way to his home in Silver Spring, Maryland.

He felt much better. He had saved

DIET AND HEALTH

Recommends Lead Poisoning Control

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SEVERAL years ago a New York physician bought an old Colonial house in Greenwich, Connecticut. In modernizing the plumbing a copper hot water tank was installed.

Two years later the doctor noticed uncertainty of walking on a rough road in the dark; he could not maintain his balance.

An airedale dog was noticed to act queerly, refuse food and fall into a stupor. A veterinary diagnosed rabies and the dog was shot.

Memory Impaired

The following winter the doctor noticed such impairment in memory in himself as to cause him grave concern. It was a defect of memory for immediate recent events, such as remembering what he read on the page before. He felt it was an impairment of cerebral function probably due to age. When the snow cleared off he again experienced difficulty in walking on a rough road, and many accidental collisions with furniture.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

He told his wife that he felt he had something serious the matter with him and had decided to consult a doctor. He then learned the following facts:

The family cat had developed an inco-ordination similar to his. The cat had fallen heavily while trying to jump to a window sill, a thing he had long been doing with ease.

His wife had noticed a numbness in her fingers, so that she could hardly hold a needle to sew. She had regarded this as an inevitable consequence of the march of time until the housekeeper had begun to complain of numbness of the legs.

Toxic Agent

The doctor had thought his trouble a progressive organic nervous disease, but now it looked as if a toxic agent to which they had all been exposed was responsible.

At this point he was told of some similar cases found by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company that had been caused by chronic lead poisoning.

An investigation showed that everyone in the household was "leaded." It was also found that the water from the hot water tank (in which all the vegetables the family ate were boiled) contained 0.18 milligrams of lead per liter. The cat had eaten these vegetables. The dog had been fed such food for two years. The plumber who had put in the tank used lead paint on the pipe joints, and all the inside joints had been wiped with lead solder.

Has a Sequel

Under proper treatment the symptoms abated, and then a most astonishing sequel occurred.

The proper treatment for lead poisoning includes plentiful green vegetables. When they returned to New York the symptoms of numbness returned and they found the vegetables they were eating were covered with lead arsenate.

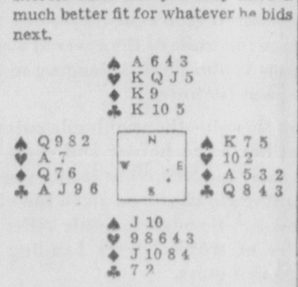

Lead arsenate spray is used especially on apples, but also on nearly every kind of fruit and green vegetable. It is the most effective and economical agent against insects. She slept on, until late afternoon. The sun was already peering obliquely through the scrolled lace of the curtains on the west window when she started up, a vaguely guilty feeling warning her of something she should be doing. For a moment the strangeness of Mrs. Morriss' gracious bedroom bewildered her. Then she came to full consciousness and sprang out of bed.

As she dressed, all her fears came flooding back. She remembered her appeal to Clark Martin, and his reassuring reply. He was a friend, he had said. She had believed him, then, the stupor of her tiredness dulling her brain. But now . . . somehow, it didn't ring true! Could she trust him? Had she trusted him too far already?

She was half afraid to answer when Dinah's inquiring tap came at the door just as she had finished dressing. She stood still in the middle of the room, her eyes searching the girl's face as Dinah wheeled through the door. But it was a smiling face, faintly amused at the lateness of the hour, a little chiding.

"Nobody called, then?" Lona asked, her relief finding voice. "There's been no word from the hospital?"

"Everything is fine. I called in just an hour ago. Jim was just waking up. He's better. There's nothing to worry about." Dinah's voice was soothing, and she relaxed.

"You're sure nobody else called?" she insisted, half afraid to feel safe. Would the police call here, she was wondering. Or would they just put a guard at the hospital? Maybe they'd even break in on Jim. Put him under arrest there in bed, while he was helpless, with nobody to protect him.

She gulped down Dinah's tasty supper hastily, afraid the girl was being hurt by her impatience, but unable to conceal it.

"I promised him I'd be there when he woke up," she told Dinah, apologetically. "I didn't intend to sleep so long. He may be wanting me."

She was glad when she was out of the house and could hurry as much as she pleased. She felt driven, somehow. Why, she couldn't explain.

Her fears crystallized as she came up to the hospital and saw, parked complacently, one of the green cars bearing the gold-lettered B. P. D., which signified the Brighton Police Department. Dismayed, she hurried her steps and, going past the clerk without inquiry, she sped down the corridor to Jim's room, her heart thumping hard.

Pages From the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up early and soon out into a rain that brought smiles to the faces of practically every farm family in Pickaway county. Plowing had become a near impossible task, but will be easy from here on. Heard much chat about fishing attempts Sunday, but no success stories. Believe it or not, but fishing never has been good on Sunday. Once in a long while someone will make good catch on the Sabbath, but for the most part anglers return with empty creels. Seems as though the fish rest on the first day of the week or refuse to have any part in encouraging those who possibly should be in church.

It was many years ago that I learned that fishing on Sunday is largely a waste of time. I was about ready to depart for my pet angling hole when I ran full face onto a Baptist minister. He knew where I was going and right there gave me a lecture on skipping Sunday school, even though I did not attend his church. He talked for almost a quarter of an hour and finally wound up by saying that on such a beautiful day he himself would rather be out along a stream than indoors. "However," he said, "you report to me of your success." I reported on my lack of success and then the minister, who loved fishing as well as any man, told me that Sunday always is the worst fish day of the week.

Met Dan Ryan, of Columbus, who was in the furniture business here for 45 years and who drops into the ville now and then to check on his local properties. Passed the time of day with Frank Fischer, the educator, and later learned of efforts that are being made to correct lighting conditions in the schools. Really, it is cheaper and much more sensible to buy electricity than glasses. I know, for it was only yesterday that Dr. Staley delivered a new pair of "eyes" to the scrivener.

Everywhere about the ville did find indications of business pickup. Seems as though most folk are preparing to fixup personally for Easter and many the housewife is preparing for home improvements. Wish someone would tip me off on the dates for housecleaning out our way. I have a business trip I would like to make.

Mrs. Ray W. Davis New Monday Club President

Chorus Offers Final Program Of Year

Mrs. Ray W. Davis was chosen to head the slate of new officers of Monday Club at its meeting Monday in the club room, Memorial Hall. Working with her for the next year will be Miss Carrie Johnson, first vice president; Mrs. Harry Heffner, second vice president; Mrs. Sterling Lamb, recording secretary; Mrs. John W. Eshelman, corresponding secretary, and Miss Alice A. May, treasurer. Mrs. Bishop Given was named chairman of the program committee which includes Miss Nell Weldon and Miss Grace Moodie as members. Miss Mary Wilder was appointed librarian for the club.

The slate was arranged and presented by the nominating committee which included Mrs. Charles Gilmore, chairman, Miss Sadie Brunner and Mrs. Robert Musser.

The final musical program of Monday Club for the club year was enjoyed, following the business hour. Preceding the presentation of the musical numbers, a very interesting paper, "Toward Understanding Modern Music", prepared by Mrs. Ray W. Davis, was read in her absence by Mrs. Frank Bennett.

Mrs. Davis' paper said in part: "After all, there are only two kinds of music—good and bad. The good music conveys meaning which lingers on in the mind, while the bad passes through our ears without making any definite impressions. The innovations in modern music, the ways in which it differs from the music of the past can be classified in three general divisions, tonality, harmony, and rhythm."

Mrs. Clark Will sang a group of four numbers illustrating in part points brought out in Mrs. Davis' paper. Her selections included, "Marietta's Song", from "The Dead City" by Karngold; "May Night," by Richard Hageman; "A Bird", by Dwight Fiske; "Summer Time", from "Porgy and Bess", by George Gershwin. The last selection is an excellent example of the contributions of jazz to modern music.

The Monday Club Chorus under the very capable direction of Mrs. J. B. Moffitt brought the interesting meeting to a close with its offerings of the song-cycle, "Rosemary", by Thompson.

The cycle is made up of four choruses including "Chemical Analysis", "A Sad Song", "A Nonsense Song" and "To Rosemary, On the Methods by Which She Might Become an Angel".

The rhythm in the song-cycle, which in itself becomes very involved at times, showed the effects of diligent study on the part of the chorus and its directress, Mrs. Moffitt.

In the absence of Mrs. D. Adrian Yates, chairman of the Music Division, Mrs. Theodore Huston presented the program numbers.

150 Attend Banquet

One hundred and fifty guests gathered at Pickaway township school, Monday, to honor the boys and girls of the two basketball teams. Lewis Moorehead, director of physical education at Ohio State university, was guest speaker for the occasion.

Members of the two squads and the high school faculty were seated around a triangular shaped table, for the cooperative dinner. In the center of this arrangement were the awards granted the teams in the county tournament. The girls' team, having won first place in the county, received a trophy, while the boys, with second place, won a basketball. The table was decorated in orange and black, the school's colors. Seated at the outside tables, which ran parallel to the triangular table, were the parents, board of education, grade school faculty and friends.

Following the dinner hour, a program was presented. The group sang many familiar songs while Miss Jane C. McWhirter, instructor of music of Pickaway school, played the accompaniments at the organ. Short talks were given by the captains of both teams. Miss Betty Duvall spoke on behalf of the girls while George Wilson spoke for the boys' team. James Boggs, winner of a place on the All-District team, brought some timely remarks.

Other speakers in addition to Mr. Moorehead, were George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools; Mrs. Bernard Young, president of the Pickaway township board of education, and Miss Opal Marshall, assistant girls' coach. Myron T. Johnson, superintendent of the school, acted as chairman. During the program, Miss Evelyn Pierce sang a solo from a part she is to have in the school's operetta to be presented in the auditorium Friday, March 31.

Carl S. Burger, coach, who received many honors throughout the evening, extended to the girls and boys various awards that they had earned during the season. To further honor Mr. Burger, his picture was mounted on small pennants and one was given to each at the triangular table. From this honor shown, the praiseworthy remarks made about him and the general round of applause made for him, it could be deduced definitely that the teams and community at large were behind their coach.

This successful banquet was made possible by the efforts of the Parent-Teacher association of the school. Mrs. E. E. Porter, president, served as general chairman.

The overblouse of flowered linen carries out the peasant theme richly, with the flowers embroidered in sequins of red, blue, white and green. A hoop worn under the skirt makes it stand out.

insects, birds, rodents, hail and wind storms. Similar tents can be used to protect young melon and pepper plants.

As illustrated in the above Garden-Graph, tomato tents are made of a thin but strong waxed paper. They resemble inverted baskets, being 11 inches broad at the base and some 9 inches high.

Tents can be placed over the seedlings or tne seeds. When the plants grow to the height of the tents, the paper tops are slit two ways to provide openings through which the growing plants can emerge. These paper tents are inexpensive and can be obtained at almost any seed store.

Carl S. Burger, coach, who received many honors throughout the evening, extended to the girls and boys various awards that they had earned during the season. To further honor Mr. Burger, his picture was mounted on small pennants and one was given to each at the triangular table. From this honor shown, the praiseworthy remarks made about him and the general round of applause made for him, it could be deduced definitely that the teams and community at large were behind their coach.

This successful banquet was made possible by the efforts of the Parent-Teacher association of the school. Mrs. E. E. Porter, president, served as general chairman.

New On Style Menu

IT'S ALWAYS a red letter day when a new idea enters the scheme of things sartorial. Eva Ortega, who has scored a hit in a Broadway revue, wears this dinner dress, an unique model especially designed for her. The full skirt is of bright red corduroy, generously shirred at the waist in peasant style. The overblouse of flowered linen carries out the peasant theme richly, with the flowers embroidered in sequins of red, blue, white and green. A hoop worn under the skirt makes it stand out.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Young tomato plants, like small boys, like to live in tents. And gardeners have found that paper tents protect tomato plants from insects, birds, rodents, hail and wind storms. Similar tents can be used to protect young melon and pepper plants.

As illustrated in the above Garden-Graph, tomato tents are made of a thin but strong waxed paper. They resemble inverted baskets, being 11 inches broad at the base and some 9 inches high.

Tents can be placed over the seedlings or the seeds. When the plants grow to the height of the tents, the paper tops are slit two ways to provide openings through which the growing plants can emerge. These paper tents are inexpensive and can be obtained at almost any seed store.

BOWSER ELECTS AIDES IN PITT COACHING STAFF

PITTSBURGH, March 28—In his first official act as head football coach at the University of Pittsburgh, Charles (Chisel) Bowser, announced today his selection of a six-man coaching staff to assist him during the 1939 season.

The new coaches were:

Michael Nicksick, backfield coach, and only member retained from resigned Dr. John B. (Jock) Sutherland's staff; Al Lezouski, guard coach and member of last year's team; Nick Kliskey, assistant coach and personnel assistant in the athletic department; Dr. Arnold Greene, backfield coach and former Pitt star; Robert Hoel, tackle coach, and William Daddio, end coach and student assistant.

Adopting a new policy, Bowser announced there would be no first assistant this year, and that all coaches would rank equally.

MOORE, SCHOTT TO SHARE DUTIES FOR CINCINNATI

TAMPA, Fla., March 28—Whitey Moore and Gene Schott were to share pitching duties for the Cincinnati Reds today when the National league club meets the Detroit Tigers in an exhibited baseball game. Yesterday's match between the Tigers and Reds was rained out.

CANZONERI IN COMEBACK

NEW YORK, March 28 — Tony Canzoneri, now 30 years old and a veteran of 15 years of ring warfare, makes another step on his comeback campaign here tonight when he meets Eddie Brink, of Scranton, Pa., in a 10-round bout.

OREGON SCORES 46-33 VICTORY OVER BUCKEYES

Tall West Coast Outfit Too Powerful For Hull And Company

EVANSTON, Ill., March 28—Oregon university's basketball team, most of whose members stand six feet four inches high, or better, towered over the national college basketball scene in more than height today after defeating Ohio State, 46 to 33, in Evanston last night.

The victory gave the Oregon quintet the national collegiate basketball championship.

Last night's game, played in Pattern gymnasium at Northwestern university before a capacity crowd of 4,500, including coaches from all over the country who were in Chicago for their yearly convention, was the final contest in a national series.

Oregon became Pacific coast champion by defeating Oklahoma and Texas, while the Buckeyes won the eastern division title with victories over Villanova and Wake Forest.

The Buckeyes, Big Ten champions, were outclassed in the latter part of the game when the height of the coast men began to work to advantage. Instrumental in breaking up Ohio's attack was Urgel "Slim" Wintermute, Oregon center whose vertical measurements reach to six feet, eight inches. Wintermute was a constant threat to Ohio in the scoring zone as he slapped down passes and effectively broke up almost every show of a concerted attack.

Hull, Anet Star

Captain Jimmy Hull of Ohio, Big Ten scoring king, starred for the losers, leading his team with 12 points. Oregon's Captain Bob Anet, five feet, eight inches and the "Shrimp" of the Webfoot team, sparked the coast squad's attack.

But although Anet gave an exhibition of perpetual motion that drew applause, Oregon's big advantage was given by the play of Forwards John Dick and Laddie Gale, a pair of six foot, four-inchers, and Guard Wally Johansen. This trio dominated the play from the outset. It was their attack that kept Ohio on the run, and when the Buckeyes moved in to split them up, it was the giant Wintermute who came along to clinch matters.

The half time score was 21-16 favor of Oregon and early in the second half Hull made it 21-18, but from there on Oregon drew away and never again was in danger.

Oregon	G	F	Ohio State	G	F
Gale, f	3	4	Hull, f	5	2
Dick, f	4	5	Baker, f	0	0
Wintermute, c	2	0	Stafford, f	0	0
Anet, g	4	2	Shick, c	1	0
Johansen, g	4	1	Sattler, c	3	1
Pavalunas, g	0	0	Lynch, g	3	1
Mullen, g	0	0	Boughner, g	1	0
			Dawson, g	1	0
			Mickelson, g	0	0
			Maag, g	0	0
			Scott, g	0	1
Totals	17	12	Totals	14	5

Half-time score—Oregon, 21; Ohio State, 16. Free throws missed—Gale, Wintermute, Anet, Johansen, Hull, 2; Lynch, 2; Sattler. Referee—John Getchell (St. Thomas). Umpire—Lyle Clarno (Bradley).

BUCKEYE TEAM VICTOR IN MARYLAND TILT, 4-3

COLLEGE PARK, Md., March 28 — Ohio State university's baseball team, losers of five straight games, today finally boasted of victory. The Buckeyes yesterday defeated Maryland, 4 to 3.

Johnny Dagenhard held Maryland to six scattered hits as his teammates hammered out a like number. Laybourne was the hitting star for Ohio as he collected three singles in four official trips to the plate.

INDIANS SEND TWO STAR ROOKIES TO BISON CLUB

NEW ORLEANS, March 28—Reduction of the Cleveland Indians' squad had started today with the assignment of Ray Mack, former Case football star, and Lou Boudreau, University of Illinois product.

The two were assigned to the Buffalo Bisons, where Mack is to be used at second base and Boudreau at shortstop, the stipulation that the two play short and second was considered a long-range attempt by the Cleveland club to solve its infield problem.

BOWSER ELECTS AIDES IN PITT COACHING STAFF

PITTSBURGH, March 28—In his first official act as head football coach at the University of Pittsburgh, Charles (Chisel) Bowser, announced today his selection of a six-man coaching staff to assist him during the 1939 season.

The new coaches were:

Michael Nicksick, backfield coach, and only member retained from resigned Dr. John B. (Jock) Sutherland's staff; Al Lezouski, guard coach and member of last year's team; Nick Kliskey, assistant coach and personnel assistant in the athletic department; Dr. Arnold Greene, backfield coach and former Pitt star; Robert Hoel, tackle coach, and William Daddio, end coach and student assistant.

Adopting a new policy, Bowser announced there would be no first assistant this year, and that all coaches would rank equally.

MOORE, SCHOTT TO SHARE DUTIES FOR CINCINNATI

TAMPA, Fla., March 28—Whitey Moore and Gene Schott were to share pitching duties for the Cincinnati Reds today when the National league club meets the Detroit Tigers in an exhibited baseball game. Yesterday's match between the Tigers and Reds was rained out.

CANZONERI IN COMEBACK

NEW YORK, March 28 — Tony Canzoneri, now 30 years old and a veteran of 15 years of ring warfare, makes another step on his comeback campaign here tonight when he meets Eddie Brink, of Scranton, Pa., in a 10-round bout.

OREGON SCORES 46-33 VICTORY OVER BUCKEYES

Tall West Coast Outfit Too Powerful For Hull And Company

EVANSTON, Ill., March 28—Oregon university's basketball team, most of whose members stand six feet four inches high, or better, towered over the national college basketball scene in more than height today after defeating Ohio State, 46 to 33, in Evanston last night.

The victory gave the Oregon quintet the national collegiate basketball championship.

Last night's game, played in Pattern gymnasium at Northwestern university before a capacity crowd of 4,500, including coaches from all over the country who were in Chicago for their yearly convention, was the final contest in a national series.

Oregon became Pacific coast champion by defeating Oklahoma and Texas, while the Buckeyes won the eastern division title with victories over Villanova and Wake Forest.

The Buckeyes, Big Ten champions, were outclassed in the latter part of the game when the height of the coast men began to work to advantage. Instrumental in breaking up Ohio's attack was Urgel "Slim" Wintermute, Oregon center whose vertical measurements reach to six feet, eight inches. Wintermute was a constant threat to Ohio in the scoring zone as he slapped down passes and effectively broke up almost every show of a concerted attack.

Hull, Anet Star

Captain Jimmy Hull of Ohio, Big Ten scoring king, starred for the losers, leading his team with 12 points. Oregon's Captain Bob Anet, five feet, eight inches and the "Shrimp" of the Webfoot team, sparked the coast squad's attack.

But although Anet gave an exhibition of perpetual motion that drew applause, Oregon's big advantage was given by the play of Forwards John Dick and Laddie Gale, a pair of six foot, four-inchers, and Guard Wally Johansen. This trio dominated the play from the outset. It was their attack that kept Ohio on the run, and when the Buckeyes moved in to split them up, it was the giant Wintermute who came along to clinch matters.

The half time score was 21-16 favor of Oregon and early in the second half Hull made it 21-18, but from there on Oregon drew away and never again was in danger.

BUCKEYE TEAM VICTOR IN MARYLAND TILT, 4-3

COLLEGE PARK, Md., March 28 — Ohio State university's baseball team, losers of five straight games, today finally boasted of victory. The Buckeyes yesterday defeated Maryland, 4 to 3.

Johnny Dagenhard held Maryland to six scattered hits as his teammates hammered out a like number. Laybourne was the hitting star for Ohio as he collected three singles in four official trips to the plate.

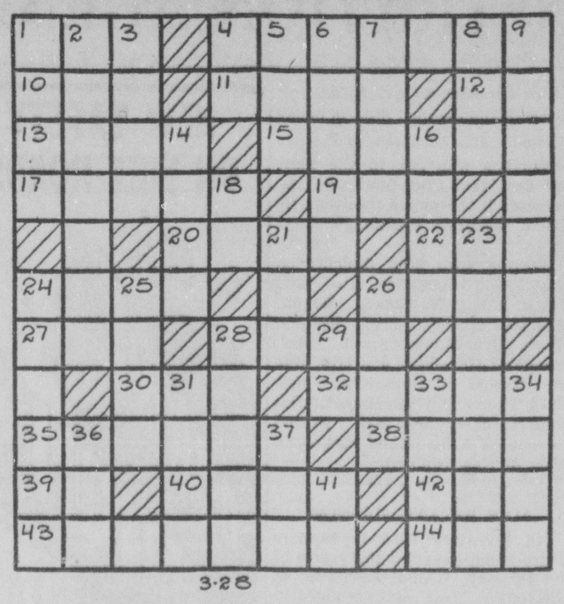

INDIANS SEND TWO STAR ROOKIES TO BISON CLUB

NEW ORLEANS, March 28—Reduction of the Cleveland Indians' squad had started today with the assignment of Ray Mack, former Case football star, and Lou Boudreau, University of Illinois product.

The two were assigned to the Buffalo Bisons, where Mack is to be used at second base and Boudreau at shortstop, the stipulation that the two play short and second was considered a long-range attempt by the Cleveland club to solve its infield problem.

COMMISSIONERS SAY COUNTY WITHOUT FUND FOR DEMONSTRATION AGENT

PROJECT URGED BY RURAL AREAS TO BE DELAYED

Appropriation To Be Studied For 1940, Officials Tell Delegation

PROGRAM PLAN OUTLINED

Idea Suggested At Institute Gatherings; Vast Field Of Activity Open

Pickaway county does not have funds available this year to obtain a home demonstration agent for the county, commissioners announced Monday afternoon when they were visited by a delegation seeking an appropriation for the program.

Members of the delegation included Mrs. C. V. Neal, Scioto township, chairman of the committee of county women boosting the program, Miss Mary Porter, Saltcreek township, and Miss Olive Grimm, home economics instructor at Walnut township school, who are members of the committee; John Boggs, representative of the extension committee of the county Farm Bureau, and W. W. Brownfield, district supervisor of the extension department of Ohio State university. Lawrence Liston, Circleville township, also a member of the delegation, was unable to attend the meeting.

Considered For 1940

The commissioners explained to members of the delegation that appropriations for 1939 have already been made and additional funds were not available to make an appropriation for the extension work this year. They said the project would be considered in appropriations for 1940.

The county's appropriation for extension work at present is $1,000, commissioners said. This appropriation is for F. K. Blair, county extension agent. It is estimated that about $2,500 would be needed for both the county agent and home demonstration agent. The salary of the home demonstration agent is paid by the state. The county appropriation is needed for expenses, supplies, etc.

The movement to obtain a home demonstration agent for the county has been under way since the farmers' institutes were held early this year. Committees were named at the institutes to boost the project.

In Pickaway county all extension activities are under the county agent. Those in favor of the home demonstration agent explain that the county agent has such a vast field to cover his time with various groups must be limited.

Work Outlined

The home demonstration agent would conduct group activities for women and girls in the various townships with study projects on food, health, canning, sewing, refinishing furniture, home beautification, garden clubs, better buying, reading, handicraft, recreation and other projects. Work of the 4-H girls' clubs would be under her supervision.

Conservation Office's "Ripper" Bill is Voted

COLUMBUS, March 28—The Republican majority in the house of representatives recovered today from a good-natured ribbing by the Democratic minority over the Myers senate bill abolishing the conservation division and establishing a conservation and natural resources division.

Although the bill failed to receive the united opposition of the Democrats, and passed 110 to 8, several members of the minority directed pot shots at the Republicans before the measure was finally approved.

Rep. Lody Huml (D-Cuyahoga) flung the first harpoon when he disagreed with Republican Majority Leader J. Harry McGregor and contended that the measure was a "ripper."

"Every ripper bill passed by this house has been for the sole purpose of putting state departments into politics," Huml declared in answer to McCregor's statement that it was not a partisan measure.

Huml contended that Lawrence Wooddell, former conservation commissioner under ex-governor Davey, was a career man and not a politician.

"In his place was appointed a political career man and a second rate county politician," Huml said.

Barnum Act Expected

Rep. A. Lee Fair (D-Holmes) urged the house not to pass the bill so quickly because "it will allow Governor Bricker to pull a P. T. Barnum act before the Ohio League of Sportsmen tomorrow night and sign the bill at that meeting."

Rep. Ralph C. Lutz (D-Richland) questioned whether civil service employes would be protected in the conservation department under terms of the bill and Rep. George J. Harter (D-Summit) intimated that the director of agriculture would have a vote in determining who should be named conservation commissioner.

To top the debate off Fair voted yes on the bill and Lutz changed his no vote to yes. Several other Democrats voted for the measure, which McGregor said had the support of the Ohio Sportsmen, the Ohio Farm Bureau, Ohio Grange and other groups.

Concurrence Needed

The measure goes back to the senate for concurrence in minor amendments before going to the governor for his signature. It will abolish the present eight member council and provide for a new nine member council composed of four Republicans, four Democrats and the director of agriculture.

The council would have the power to select and appoint a commissioner and the agriculture director would have a vote only on matters of policy.
